Weekly Learning Objectives

We will be discussing and evaluating the following questions in class this week:

- What made historians consider the Sumerians to be one of the first great civilizations?
- What role has economics played in the development of civilizations?
- How do civilizations establish and maintain order?
- What factors led to the development of Empires in Mesopotamia?

We will be practicing and improving on the following skills in class this week:

- | | |
|------------------|---------------------|
| • Active Reading | • Paragraph Writing |
| • Note-taking | • Test-taking |

Day 1

Journal Check: You will need to have completed journal entries since the last journal check on October 31, 2007 through November 16, 2007 (approx. 7-9 entries). Each journal entry should be dated and include a short summary of the class activities and your thoughts of the class on that particular day.

Day 2

Relax Thanksgiving.0: After such a grand Festival, you will probably need some time to relax, decompress, and have an enjoyable Thanksgiving. Here are a few helpful pieces of advice on how to make the most of your break:

- Stop after 5 plates of food. The food is no longer your friend at that point.
- Avoid spending all of your time on phone. Get some air while you still can.
- Avoid adopting a pet rock and then forgetting to take care of it. They are sensitive and need a lot of attention.
- Avoid throwing a sleep over and then forgetting to invite your stuffed animals. Remember they have feelings too.
- Avoid looking at this list the whole break and trying to decide which one you should do.
- Take your own advice and enjoy the break!
